Emplacement temporaire Caroline

The House of European History takes visitors on a journey along the path of Europe's history and challenges them to contemplate its future.

Entrance is free, with audio-guides in the 24 official languages of the European Union.

At the heart of the House of European History, the permanent exhibition galleries use objects, reconstructions and multimedia resources to take visitors on a thought-provoking narrative that focuses on the continent's 19th and 20th centuries.

The museum regularly hosts temporary exhibitions.

For example, exploring the issue of waste in Europe, disinformation or artwork during wartime. Discover the current temporary exhibition on the website.

Teachers and Students

Learning aids and resources are available both on-site and online. Onsite, the museum offers workshops, guided and self-guided tours for primary and secondary school students. Online, teachers and students can use free digital resources for the history and civics classroom, either as a preparation to visit the House of European History or as a classroom activity.

Families

From museum trails to hands-on spaces and family events, you can arrange a fun day of discovery and connection for the whole family at the House of European History.

A trail created in the style of a newspaper makes young visitors aged 8 to 12 step into the shoes of a spy. The trail is available in four languages (Dutch, French, English, German) during the museum opening hours.

The museum is family-friendly, with baby-changing facilities and access for buggies. Parents may feel certain aspects of the permanent exhibition are only suitable for children over eleven years old.
